ABOUT THE PLAYWRIGHT

Harold Pinter (b. 1930) is an English actor and dramatist. The only child of a Portuguese-Jewish tailor, Pinter was born in East London. He left the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art after his first year to join a repertory company. Twice he declined the call for National Service and was tried and fined both times. In addition to acting and producing poems and prose, Pinter has written and directed dramas for television, radio and the stage, and has even worked on a novel. His dramas are often labeled a "comedy of menace" because of the absurd manner of terror that they evoke. Other plays written by Pinter include The Room, A Night Out, The Dwarfs, and The Homecoming.

Celebrate 76 years of theatre at the University of Michigan. Become a member of the newly created theatre "friends" group called U-M Theatre Associates.

James Earl Jones, Hal Cooper, Jack O'Brien, Maureen Anderman, Christine Lahti ...

These are a few of the distinguished University alumni who have made significant contributions to the world of theatre and drama. Your membership in the U-M Theatre Associates can help us continue to attract and train future notable artists such as these - through scholarships, graduate student internships, guest director/guest artist residencies, and innovative, design-technology programs. As a theatre goer, you will enjoy the tangible results of your membership when you attend a U-M Theatre production at Trueblood, Lydia Mendelssohn, or the Power Center.

Membership benefits include:

- *Advance notification of Theatre Department productions for the best seating
- *Invitations to all U-M Theatre special events/programs
- *Theatre Department newsletters highlighting upcoming productions
- *Recognition in future playbills and newsletters

Your gift may be designated as a tribute or memorial gift. All gifts are contributions to the University of Michigan and qualify for U-M giving clubs.

Won't you invest in another 76 years of quality Theatre at Michigan?
